

Homeopathy is

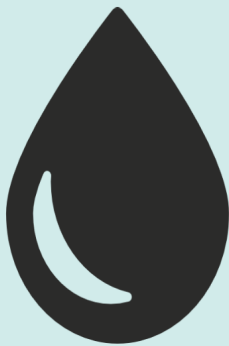

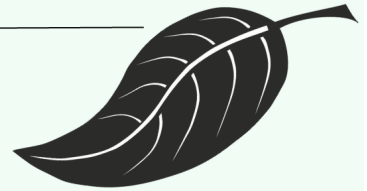

GREEN MEDICINE

Our Bodies

ENTIRELY NONTOXIC

As one might expect from medicine claiming to be green, homeopathic products are entirely nontoxic to people and animals. This is because, unlike pharmaceuticals, these medicines are ultradilute. And, of course, they involve neither the obvious hazards of radiological diagnostic and treatment options, nor the environmental impacts of the associated waste.

Our Water

SAFE FOR OUR WATER SUPPLIES

Since what goes into the body when taking a homeopathic medicine is nontoxic, what comes out is also nontoxic. That means people and wildlife are safeguarded. Many pharmaceuticals don't metabolize and so pass through the body unaltered. That means they end up in our water supplies, imperiling the health of both humans and wildlife.

Our Land

NO BYPRODUCTS FROM MANUFACTURING

The manufacturing process produces no byproducts. Most of what little waste there is can be recycled or composted. Homeopathic medicines are typically packaged in recyclable glass or plastic bottles. These medicines are administered without syringes, gloves, or bandages and therefore produce no hazardous medical wastes.